Republicans fire two UW Regents, poised to fire as many as six other appointees today.

MADISON — Gov. Tony Evers today slammed Republicans in the Wisconsin State Senate for once again voting to baselessly fire two of the governor's appointees to the University of Wisconsin (UW) System Board of Regents who voted against a deal brokered by Republican leaders and the UW System purportedly aimed at limiting diversity, equity, and inclusion efforts on campuses. Wisconsin Republicans in the Wisconsin State Senate today voted to fire Regents John Miller and Dana Wachs from the UW Board of Regents.

To date, with the two Regents fired today, Senate Republicans have now baselessly rejected 15 of Gov. Evers' appointees. . Senate Republicans are similarly set to fire as many as six other appointees to the Wisconsin Judicial Commission, the Wisconsin Deferred Compensation Board, and the Governor's Council on Domestic Abuse, respectively, today, bringing the total number of baselessly fired appointees to 21 total since the governor took office.
