

Democrats get the health care fight they want with prescription drug bill

Written by The Hill Press

Saturday, 14 December 2019 15:22 -

Democrats, progressive groups plan to spotlight Speaker Pelosi's sweeping bill as central piece in 2020 health messaging.

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Democrats looking for a health care fight in 2020 have found a key marker with the House drug pricing bill.

The White House said the bill would impose "price controls" and indicated President Trump would issue a veto if it gets to his desk.

But lowering drug prices polls consistently as one of the top issues for voters, and Democrats and progressive groups plan to spotlight Speaker Nancy Pelosi's (D-Calif.) sweeping bill as the central piece to their health messaging in 2020.

Read the full story here