Would provide an estimated 29,000 family supporting jobs, $4.3 billion in economic impact for state. Building Commission to consider this week.

MADISON – Gov. Tony Evers on Monday urged bipartisan support for his 2021-23 Capital Budget proposal released last month as the state looks to bounce back from the COVID-19 pandemic. Gov. Evers' biennial capital budget, which includes major projects in 31 of Wisconsin's 72 counties, represents one of the strongest investments to date in Wisconsin's state facility infrastructure and economic recovery, including a $2.38 billion investment that would provide an approximately 29,000 family-supporting jobs and an estimated overall $4.3 billion economic impact.

This week, the State Building Commission (SBC) is set to take up the governor's capital budget proposal, which includes major projects in both Republican and Democratic legislative districts. The full SBC will meet at 1:00 p.m. on Wed., March 17, 2021. The meeting will be streamed on WisconsinEye.

“We know that folks in red and blue districts alike from across our state will feel the economic impact of this capital budget, and these are just the sort of strategic investments we need to make sure our economy can recover and bounce back from this pandemic,” said Gov. Evers. “Our proposal not only invests in our students at our UW campuses, our veterans at our veterans homes across the state, and our public lands and more renewable projects, but it invests in the future we want to build for our state. As our state faces urgent challenges due to COVID-19, it's never been more important for our capital budget investments to receive bipartisan support."

The SBC will meet over the next three days to review and vote on the governor's capital budget recommendations. The SBC is required to submit its capital budget recommendations to the Legislature's Joint Committee on Finance by the first Tuesday in April. Once the Joint Finance Committee receives the recommendations, the capital budget becomes part of larger deliberations with the state's 2021-23 biennial operating budget.

The governor's call today comes after the 2019-21 SBC process resulted in failing to develop a State Building Program for possibly the first time in state history and as Republicans in the Legislature have signaled the 2021-23 Capital Budget might meet a similar fate. During the 2019-21 biennium, the SBC reviewed state agency requests and the governor's 2019-21 Capital Budget recommendations, and in a disappointing and unprecedented turn of events, failed to provide recommendations for any of the 82 items submitted on the agenda. This was the first time in SBC records the Commission did not collaborate to develop a State Building Program. The Administrative Affairs Subcommittee and Higher Education Subcommittee unanimously approved their subcommittee items, but the full Commission did not adopt these recommendations at the meeting held on March 20, 2019, as each agenda item motion failed along a party-line vote.

Highlights of Gov. Evers' capital budget projects the SBC will take up this week include:
