Green Bay native Steve Peters has joined his legislative office staff for constituent outreach.

STURGEON BAY, WI – Senator Caleb Frostman (D-Sturgeon Bay) announced that Steve Peters, a Green Bay native, has joined his legislative office staff. Steve previously worked for Representative Eric Genrich (D-Green Bay) and will be assisting Sen. Frostman with constituent outreach in order to provide one-on-one assistance to the residents in the 1st Senate District.

“Steve’s understanding of local issues and responsiveness to constituents will help me to provide high quality services that people expect from their elected officials,” said Sen. Frostman. “As I continue to meet with residents, community leaders, and businesses throughout northeastern Wisconsin, I want to be a resource and advocate for our community. Steve shares my passion for outdoor recreation, strong schools and safe roads, and his assistance will ensure that local needs are addressed and the interests of our region are well-represented.”

Constituent, media, legislative, and scheduling inquiries should be directed to Senator Frostman’s Capitol office.
