New website will allow residents to share their ideas on moving the state forward. Madison's Carrie Lynch will lead communications during the transition.

MADISON – Wednesday, Governor-elect Tony Evers and Lt. Governor-elect Mandela Barnes announced the launch of the official Transition Website. It went live in the afternoon and can be found at https://evers.wi.gov .

"We want Wisconsin residents to be an active part of their government and share their ideas on moving the state forward," said Governor-elect Evers. "Our new transition website will make that easy for them to do starting today."

Wisconsin residents can share their ideas with Governor-elect Evers at https://nws.wisconsin.e gov.com/forms/governor/contact

To help fulfill Governor-elect Evers' commitment to recruiting talented individuals who reflect our state's values and diversity to serve in his administration, the website has an easy-to-use section for applying to serve in the Evers administration. Interested individuals can go to https: //nws.wisconsin.egov.com/forms/governor/apply and send in their materials for consideration.
