Let's talk guns following the Florida school shooting, special elections, Foxconn, and WEDC's ads targeting young Chicagoans.

STATEWIDE - We discuss the evolving political debate on guns following the Florida school shooting, including the split between Gov. Walker's and Attorney General Brad Schimel on arming teachers.

We talk about a new lawsuit, led by Eric Holder, which challenges Scott Walker's refusal to hold special elections in two open legislative districts.

The panel also discusses: Wisconsin shifting of up to $90 million in local road funding to a Foxconn-related projects; advertising experts pan WEDC's ads targeting young Chicagoans; and Election Commission administrator Michael Haas steps down in face of GOP witchhunt. We close the show by welcoming Citizen Action co-op member Kris Lennon to preview a Fair Maps Town Hall in Racine on Saturday (March 10).
