GREEN BAY - This week we're pleased to introduce you to another candidate we're working with this spring on their race for local office. Meet Will Peters, running for Brown County Board of Supervisors in Northeast Wisconsin!

Will was born and raised in Green Bay where he lives with his wife and two children. Will is working hard to get elected because, as he puts it, he "believes his district deserves someone who will wear their community pride on their shoulder and always be conscious of what is in the best interest of their constituents."

Will works as an employment consultant to provide job preparation and development services to individuals with physical, mental, or cognitive limitations. He wants Brown County to offer the services its residents need by ensuring staff, programs, and departments are receiving the funding necessary to operate while promoting economic growth.

Will wants to represent his district to promote cooperation between city and county governments and other organizations to provide the best services possible. Will works at this collaboration through his involvement in the community already. He is the President of the Fort Howard Neighborhood Association, Green Bay's oldest and largest neighborhood.

He also serves on the Green Bay Neighborhood Leadership Council and its steering committee. Will helped develop Green Bay's first Community Leadership Institute, a collaborative effort between Neighborworks Green Bay and the Neighborhood Leadership Council.

Thank you for helping to elect our progressive champions.
