MILWAUKEE - We begin with important new legislation to hold prescription drug corporations accountable for skyrocketing prices.

Then we turn to a huge week in the courts, where the voting rights trial concludes its second week and a trial began on a crucial challenge to Wisconsin's gerrymandered legislative districts.

We also talk about a State Appeals Court stay in Wisconsin's right-to-work lawsuit and GOP Attorney General Brad Schimel's lawsuit against the Obama administration's protection for the rights of transgender kids.

Paul Ryan Watch finds Donald Trump trying to get Speaker Ryan doing the splits with one foot on the Trump Train.
