http://newiprogressive.com/images/stories/S5/covid-19-travel-cdc-hill-s5.png

The agency said fully vaccinated people do not need to get tested before or after domestic travel unless the destination requires it.

WASHINGTON, DC - The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said in new guidance on Friday that fully vaccinated people can safely travel.

The agency further said fully vaccinated people do not need to get tested before or after unless the destination requires it. People should still wear a mask while they travel, though, the agency said.

Read the developing report here