

AT&T, Verizon to delay 5G rollout near certain airports

Written by The Hill Press

Tuesday, 18 January 2022 15:05 - Last Updated Wednesday, 19 January 2022 15:07

<http://newiproggressive.com/images/stories/S5/airlines-5g-2022-getty-s450.jpg>

FAA has not utilized the two years they've had to responsibly plan for this deployment.

WASHINGTON, DC - AT&T and Verizon on Tuesday each agreed to temporarily delay their 5G rollouts near certain airports amid concerns over possible flight disruptions.

The move follows mounting outside pressure and comes amid warnings from U.S. airlines that new 5G wireless service that was set to start Wednesday could ground flights and leave potentially thousands of Americans stranded while also delaying goods.

Read the developing report here