Senator Smith talks about bills that protect and expand access to the right to vote and how they will positively impact the ease of voting.

MADISON - Over the past several weeks, I joined several colleagues in the State Senate and State Assembly in introducing legislation to remove barriers to voting. From encouraging young voters' participation to allowing voters the chance to override unpopular policies, we believe that the People's ability to be heard should not be restricted by politicians who choose to ignore the People's will.

Let's start with a longtime favorite of mine, automatic voter registration. While the process of registering to vote is relatively easy, some people have a misconception that it is a complex process and decide not to even try.

Your Vote, Your Voice
