

Taylor testifies Trump cared more about 'investigations' than Ukraine

Written by The Hill Press

Thursday, 14 November 2019 09:36 - Last Updated Thursday, 14 November 2019 10:00

WASHINGTON, D.C. -

, the top U.S. diplomat in Ukraine, says that U.S. Ambassador to the European Union Gordon Sondland told a member of his staff in July that President Trump cared more about an investigation into former Vice President Joe Biden than he did about Ukraine.

Taylor described the conversation relayed to him last week by a member of his staff in a copy of his opening remarks at the first hearing in the House impeachment inquiry on Wednesday.

According to Taylor, the conversation took place on July 26, the day after a phone call between Trump and Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky in which Trump raised investigations into 2016 election interference and the Biden family.

Read the developing report here