Madison, Wis. -- In an interview with Breitbart, Ron Johnson took his opposition to the bipartisan infrastructure efforts a step further, vowing to “slow down the process” and do everything he could to keep Wisconsin communities from getting needed infrastructure improvements.

“With his self-serving declaration to do everything possible to block bipartisan infrastructure, Ron Johnson proves yet again that he doesn’t work for Wisconsinites,” said Democratic Party of Wisconsin Senate Communications Advisor Philip Shulman. “Johnson has become the ringleader for obstructionism as he chooses to play political games with Wisconsinites’ livelihoods rather than support real solutions that would help the Badger state.”

Johnson, previously stated “beware of bipartisanship,” and blasted efforts to pass this legislation that would be a boon for Wisconsin’s workers and economy.
