

Eric Hovde Seen As Out-of-Touch Rich Guy

Written by WisDems Press

Thursday, 25 April 2024 14:15 - Last Updated Saturday, 27 April 2024 09:26

A series of unearthed comments and news investigations have exposed Eric Hovde as a rich guy who won't work for Wisconsin.

MADISON, Wis. — California bank owner Eric Hovde has had a rough week on the campaign trail. A series of unearthed comments and news investigations have exposed Eric Hovde as an out-of-touch rich guy who won't work for Wisconsin.

-

Hovde spent the past week dealing with intense criticism over his false comments that “almost nobody in a nursing home is in a point to vote” because they lack “the mental capacity” and “only have five, six months to live.” No bizarre 3 minute video will change the fact that Wisconsinites will hold Hovde accountable for his own words.

-

Next, Wisconsinites heard more about Hovde's record of disrespecting and mistreating our senior citizens after a breaking news report was published by the New York Times

Eric Hovde Seen As Out-of-Touch Rich Guy

Written by WisDems Press

Thursday, 25 April 2024 14:15 - Last Updated Saturday, 27 April 2024 09:26

that the bank Hovde owns is being sued for wrongful death and elder abuse at a nursing home they own in California. Hovde did not take accountability or address these disturbing allegations, instead he threatened

to sue the New York Times

Then, Axios revealed that Hovde is using his family wealth to try and buy Wisconsin's senate seat with his brother and business partner Steve Hovde funding a million dollar, pro-Hovde Super PAC—just one week after speaking at the campaign launch.

Finally, video surfaced of Eric Hovde failing to correctly say the Pledge of Allegiance.

Each day, it's becoming more and more clear that Eric Hovde is just an out-of-touch rich guy who won't work for Wisconsin.