

Green Bay Physician Dr. Kristin Lyerly Announces Run For State Assembly

Written by Kristin for Wisconsin Press

Thursday, 14 May 2020 10:16 - Last Updated Friday, 15 May 2020 11:31

Self described obstetrician/gynecologist, mom, and advocate with northeast Wisconsin roots to run in District 88 covering UWGB, Ledgeview, Bellevue and rural areas surrounding.

GREEN BAY - Politics as usual have failed us, and the stakes couldn't be higher. The COVID-19 pandemic has only sharpened our need for responsive and responsible leadership. Our communities deserve leaders who listen, leaders who understand us, and leaders who don't put our lives on the line so we can exercise the most basic of our constitutional duties — the right to vote. My name is Kristin Lyerly, and I am running for State Assembly, District 88, because I am that leader.

My roots and my heart are in Northeast Wisconsin. My mom's parents were dairy farmers near Fond du Lac, back when family farms were a way of life in the Badger State. My uncle still owns the farm, although the cows are long gone. My dad was a foreman in the tool and die industry in Kaukauna, until that moved out of town. His entire family worked at the paper mill. My parents' dream for me and my sister, a bank teller in Oshkosh, was to go to college, and they fought to get us there. I graduated from the University of Minnesota and then came home to the University of Wisconsin for medical school and residency training in obstetrics and gynecology, along the way earning a Master's Degree in Public Health — as well as a student loan debt burden I am paying off to this day.

Green Bay Physician Dr. Kristin Lyerly Announces Run For State Assembly

Written by Kristin for Wisconsin Press

Thursday, 14 May 2020 10:16 - Last Updated Friday, 15 May 2020 11:31

